Dr. Ian Mauro is an Associate Professor in the Department of Geography at the University of Winnipeg. He holds a BSc in Environmental Science and PhD in Geography, from University of Manitoba, and was a SSHRC Postdoctoral fellow in Ethnoecology at the University of Victoria. As both a community-based researcher and filmmaker, Mauro works at the interface between the social and ecological sciences, and is a pioneer of multi-media methodologies, scholarship and education. He uses participatory video to collect, communicate and conserve local and indigenous knowledge, an approach that allows people who live on the land to tell their own stories, in their own language, and within the landscapes where their knowledge has been generated.

Tuesday, March 13

12:30 – 1:30 PM  Dr. Mauro presents his keynote talk “Climate, Cinema and Cartography.”
Location: Physics 120

Wednesday, March 14

3:30 – 5:00 PM  Dr. Mauro presents professional development seminar for University of Missouri students. Sponsored by the Department of Geography.
Location: Memorial Union, Stotler Lounge

6:30 PM  Screening of “Qapirangjug” with post-screening discussion.
Location: Ragtag Cinema, 10 Hitt Street
Drawing from an ancient memory bank of knowledge and experience, contemporary Inuit share their knowledge of climate change in their homeland and make it clear that this is a human rights issue affecting their culture and their survival.